

ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY

At La Joya we understand that nature is the source of life. This long-term relationship allows us to develop a clean technological industry that meets the highest environmental standards for the cultivation, production and marketing of vegetable oils and their derivatives.

The joint work with independent producers allows us to obtain quality products, through a process of continuous improvement.

We believe that caring for the other is the best way to develop ourselves; always based on compatibility with society, the market and above all with nature.
